

Just outside the town walls was an enormous palace. Inside, lived a beautiful young girl, called Princess Jasmine. She had a very easy life, with more riches than she could wish for.

There was only one problem; her father was determined that she should marry a rich man like himself, so she was forbidden to play outside with the local girls and boys.